THE GREEK DREAM

SUMMER 2027 • JUNE, JULY & AUGUST

An exhibition on Greek Idealism and the freedom of self-expression: four citizens, one sunlit cliff, and a society strong enough to let every body stand proud.

FOUR CITIZENS, FOUR LEVELS

The Bathhouse

A towering, thickly muscled Italian man raises his arms wide, strigil in hand. A healed sword scar crosses his torso, a quiet mark of a life lived.

The School

A lean, bald teacher stands proudly before his students. A small tattoo marks him as enslaved, set against pale skin that rarely meets the sun.

The Forest Garden

A petite, freckled woman with long ginger waves and a toned build. A small healed scar rests on her right shoulder.

The Cliff Edge

A tall, soft, curvy woman with a dark bob and seashell anklets looks out over the beach. A burn scar marks her forearm.

ABOUT THE EXHIBITION

Strong vertical columns stand for a society secure enough that people can be confident in who they are. Warm orange light meets deep blue sea, and the figures glow as the focal points. Every body appears natural, unretouched, and proud, with body hair, freckles, scars, and tattoos left in place. The style is American Regionalism, with smooth realism, crisp outlines, and simplified forms in the spirit of Grant Wood.
